

Tyneside Recovery College

5th Floor, Broadacre House, Market Street, Newcastle upon Tyne, NE1 6HQ

Prospectus April – July 2016

The Ivy Centre for Recovery Knowledge has become the Tyneside Recovery College, and in the New Year we moved to Broadacre House in Newcastle city centre.

Our new premises are large enough to offer more courses and workshops to more students. There will be plenty of creative activities, performances and exhibitions to complement the courses and workshops that we currently offer to support your recovery from mental illness, trauma or distress, substance misuse or life struggle.

With peer support groups to suit lots of different needs and input from our many friends in the third sector, Broadacre House will become a hub for peer led opportunities. We've also been busy developing courses in Gateshead. Working with partner organisations to create opportunities that are educational, therapeutic and interesting.

Everyone needs to feel supported and understood. It can often be easier to explore the impact of trauma and distress with someone who has experienced a similar journey to your own. The Recovery College is peer led and peer run. This means that everyone who works at the college have their own lived experience of recovery and survival. Our courses have been developed around what people have already found to be helpful in their own recovery.

We acknowledge that many students have had difficult pasts and so it's important to us that students feel safe enough to be able to explore their emotions, connect with others, and feel supported to recognise their own innate resilience. We want you to feel a sense of belonging.

All courses are free and open to anyone who would find them helpful in their recovery from mental illness, substance misuse, trauma or distress. Or to anyone who might find them beneficial to their wellbeing.

If any of the courses interest you then contact us on 0191 261 0948

Or email us; ivycentre@ntw.nhs.uk to make an appointment to come in and enrol.

Creative Wellness

We hope that this course will encourage students to develop creative skills which will enhance their emotional wellbeing. The focus will be on learning a series of creative skills such as printmaking, model making, basic drawing techniques, creative writing and book making, which will hopefully influence and emphasise recovery and hope. The students' recovery journey expressed through a range of creative techniques will interlink and combine to make an emotional wellbeing first aid kit.

Although creativity can be an important part of recovery for many people, so too can meditation, mindfulness and relaxation. Each session will incorporate creative skills and basic meditation and mindfulness techniques. It is hoped that the combination of both skill sets will aid and empower people along their journey of recovery, instilling a sense of hope.

Broadacre House

Progressive Muscle Relaxation Programme (PMR)

What is PMR?

A relaxation technique teaching awareness of and for the own body. By controlled tightening and then releasing of muscles, the body learns to relax on cue. The techniques used by this approach are easy to learn and can be practiced almost anywhere.

Progressive Muscle Relaxation has been empirically verified for its positive effects on (mental) health related issues such as anxiety and depression, as well as general stress reduction. It is suitable to any age and anyone but psychosis patients.

The course

Each class we will spend a couple minutes to talk about current states and set the scene for a positive and relaxing environment. We will then close our eyes and spend about 20-30 minutes on PMR before enjoying a fantasy mind travel to relax fully. After the activity, we will have some time to talk about our experiences and emotions during the session and evaluate if anything feels different after our mind and body exercise.

Recovery through Strength and Hope

This is an eight week course for current or previous users of drugs and/or alcohol.

The course is delivered by peers, who have lived experience of recovery from substance misuse.

We hope that by attending this course peoples' awareness of recovery is raised and their knowledge regarding the choices and opportunities available to them is increased.

"The worst thing about recovery is that you get your feelings back"

We understand that managing those feelings can often be overwhelming and so we hope to provide some tools and skills to help people deal with life after drugs and/or alcohol.

We want to support people to recognise the strength, resilience and resourcefulness they already have within them and use these skills to build a better future.

Please note; these sessions are in the afternoon. If you are a current user you will need to be sober when you attend.

This course will run on:
Monday 9th May 1pm - 3pm

Understanding Psychiatry

The session will initially describe the approach taken by psychiatrists in assessing, understanding and treating mental disorder. It will include briefly the development of psychiatry as a branch of medicine, looking at similarities and differences from the rest of medicine and will also describe the areas of information that are considered important in the history and investigation, and consider the concepts of diagnosis and formulation as used by psychiatrists. It will set out the approach taken to consider the many different influences on a person's health and how these are taken account of in reaching a conclusion, and planning care and treatment.

We will then look forward to an interactive discussion about the strengths and weaknesses of this approach. Like all approaches there are limitations, some of which psychiatrists are aware of and others perhaps less so. Others still are perceived by service users, carers and members of the public.

- By the end of the session, those who attend will have gained:
- an understanding of the psychiatrists approach, its strengths and limitations
 - an understanding of a multidimensional formulation
 - an understanding of the benefits and limitations of diagnosis

Facilitated by the former Medical Director of Northumberland, Tyne and Wear NHS Foundation Trust.

Creative writing can have a powerful therapeutic effect gently encouraging participants out of their shells. Participants are encouraged to, and will have the opportunity to present their work in public such as performing poetry to an audience should they feel ready.

An overview of the Adult ADHD rollercoaster ride

Adult ADHD has been described by a leading clinician as one of the most debilitating mental health conditions.

It is a common misconception that ADHD is limited to children. Various research studies have noted that 30% to 70% of children with ADHD continue having symptoms when they grow up. People who were never diagnosed as children may develop more obvious symptoms in adulthood, causing them trouble on the job or in relationships.

Many adults don't learn that they have ADHD until they get help for another problem, such as anxiety or depression. Discussing poor habits, troubles at work, or marital conflicts often reveals that ADHD has been at the core of such things.

Holding down a job can be tough for people with ADHD. They often have trouble breaking down tasks and following directions, staying organized, and making deadlines. Very often, adults don't realise they have ADHD, this leaves them mystified about why their goals seem to slip out of reach.

- An introduction: what exactly is adult ADHD?
- The often arduous journey to and from diagnosis, exploring the 'road bumps'.
- Exploring the myths and damage caused by the mainstream media
- Medication and other support

Slowing the ride down

- Labels, Is Executive Function Disorder a better 'fit'?
- AD/HD usually comes bundled with one or more of a range of co-morbid conditions, which can often complicate the diagnostic process unless the clinician knows what to look for. We look at some of them.
- Exploring other approaches to dealing with Adult ADHD
- Local and national projects with a creative flair
- Group work Discussion

This course will run on:
Wednesday 27th April 1pm - 3pm
Wednesday 4th May 1pm - 3pm
Wednesday 11th May 1pm - 3pm
Wednesday 18th May 1pm - 3pm
Wednesday 25th May 1pm - 3pm

"It's a safe, friendly and relaxed environment where I can be myself"

"I've learnt to challenge perceptions around mental health"

"I feel safe and not judged, it's helpful"

Understanding the impact of a difficult childhood/formulation

This intensive, two day course will give students the opportunity to explore both subjects. Gaining an understanding as to how and why difficult or traumatic early life events can continue to affect our wellbeing.

This course will run on:

Monday 18th April 9.30am - 3.30pm

Wednesday 20th April 9.30am - 3.30pm

How did you learn to talk? How did you learn how to perform ordinary life tasks? How did you learn to soothe your distress? Childhood is when we learn who we are and what to expect from others. If this time was difficult then the impact on your thoughts and feelings is significant. This course explores the impact of difficult early life and it's effect on the present.

Formulation is a helpful technique used by health care professionals to make sense of a persons difficulties. It's basically a life jigsaw, incorporating early life experiences, belief systems and current ways of being. It draws upon psychological and social theories to really understand someone's situation and is used as an educational tool to help the service user understand themselves better and to take control of their own destiny. It's a tool which aims to emancipate the service user by co-producing a map of the past and developing a plan for the future. During these sessions you will have the opportunity to create your own formulation.

WRAP Awareness

This workshop will run on:

Thursday 12th May 9.30am - 4pm

Thursday 19th May 9.30am - 4pm

A workshop for people who experience mental health challenges and for those who care about them. It promotes a structured approach to developing a range of strategies to support self-management in recovery from distress.

WRAP® (Wellness Recovery Action Plan) is a plan designed and managed by you and is designed to:

- Decrease and prevent intrusive or troubling feelings and behaviours
- Increase personal empowerment
- Improve quality of life
- Assist you in achieving your own life goals and dreams

"Listening to others makes me realise I'm not alone"

De-stigmatising mental health art workshop

This workshop will run on:

Wednesday 11th May 12 - 4pm

We will be using spoken word and photography in order to de stigmatise mental health. Everyone can contribute something such as a statement they'd like to share with the wider public about mental illness and distress.

We will be taking photographs of people's hands as they speak. The idea would be that the photographs would accompany the persons contribution about mental health, allowing the participants to take ownership of the end exhibition. This workshop will give an opportunity for people to get involved with arts and have their voice heard.

Mirror

This two hour introduction to mirror work with time to chat and practice after the session will allow you to reconnect in a safe and supportive environment of just women.

This course will run on:
Thursday 16th June 9.30am - 12 noon
Thursday 23rd June 9.30am - 12 noon

To give you the skills to face the mirror in a new and more loving way. "what you think about yourself will come true, so you don't want to think bad things." Louise Hay.

Based on Louise Hay's book "How to heal your Life" and her realisation that Affirmations are one of the most powerful things in your mind, They are the constantly repeated stories we tell ourselves; I'm clumsy, I'm useless, I'm a good cook but I can't bake, I would never be able to do that....

These words are like old familiar clothes we pick up and wear not because we like them but because its less scary than wearing a new outfit. Here's the good news thoughts are not really true and you can choose to change them to more positive and liberating words. These positive affirmations can transform your thinking and how you experience life.

Louise Hay believes that "A mirror reflects back to you the feelings you have about yourself" and she recommends practicing mirror work if you don't already. When you get out of bed, go to the mirror and say "I love you, I really, really love you" This is an amazing practice that sounds so very simple. Just stand in front of a mirror and be nice to yourself.. Problem is we have been trained to have a very different experience in front of a mirror we spot every flaw and begin to list our shortcomings, and are amazed that no one else can see them as clearly as we do, until for many people the simple act of looking in the mirror becomes a daily challenge, avoided in changing rooms or hallways. Come and join us in beginning to transforming that experience and discover the powerful effect positive affirmations can have.

Joelene English Workshops

This workshop will run on:
Friday 22nd April 10am - 2pm
Friday 29th April 10am - 2pm
Friday 6th May 10am - 2pm
Friday 13th May 10am - 2pm
Friday 20th May 10am - 2pm

Joelene English is a Contemporary Dance Theatre choreographer and performance artist. Since graduating in 2006 she has gone on to choreograph and perform in an array of genres and venues, as well as teaching a wide range of students and professional artists. She is interested in using dance, film and theatre to explore human nature when destiny becomes trapped by reality. Her work combines taut choreography, beautiful scenography and emotional performance. She is fascinated by mental illness and its impact on everyday life. Through the use of intricate set design and diverse multi-mediums, Joelene creates immersive worlds that reveal sensitive and highly emotional subjects. She is inspired and challenged by deep and dark topics that allow her to dig deep in research.

“Why do we hide from the dark side of life in which we bury under the soul? My soul wants to come out to play, nowhere to hide anymore”.

To date Joelene English Dance Theatres work has had a relationship with mental illness, this has been hugely influenced from personal experiences. Researching and delving into personal cob webbed memories for work opens up a world of questions and few answers. Joelene creates work that has such influence from mental illness yet does she hide her own afflictions...

In order to be fully equipped with fact and knowledge the research for the work that I have done is through having conversations with mental health practitioners and mental health sufferers.

I have been fortunate enough to work with mental health groups and what we as a collective focused on was creative writing, poetry, objects, body language and dance.

Workshops

Joelene English Dance Theatre will run five workshops over two months with a chosen group.

The sessions will be playful and fun using different art forms including creative writing, movement, drama, visual art and photography to explore the creation of an alter ego.

To tell a personal story taking moments from well-known stories as starting points and weaving the real lives of its creators in amongst fragmented fiction.

There is a story within us all and spoken word can often get in the way of communicating it with others. These workshops will offer each individual a different way to speak a voice through physicality, objects, photographs or if they dare dance.

Each workshop will create an environment for challenge, discussion, creation and silence. What is created within the workshops will form the basis of a collaborative multi medium installation of individual personal journeys, including photographs, sound and objects.

Bellydance

This session will run on:

Wednesday 18th May 1pm - 3pm

Marian Moore is a North East storyteller and expert through experience who writes regularly on the web. She hereby invites old and new friends to a two-hour heart to heart at The Recovery College from 10am - 12 noon on Monday 11 April 2016.

In inviting you along to this learning experience based on storytelling, she is hoping to get useful feedback from the Newcastle service user community as to how to proceed. For the purpose of its first public airing, Marian has chosen to start at the very beginning of the 25-module course:

- Module 1 is related to the healing power of conversation.
- Module 2 is a short version of her own recovery story.

Each of the 5-minute readings related to Modules 1 and 2 will involve the audience in comfortable small group conversations around issues that affect every single one of us, the first is happiness and, the second is post-traumatic growth.

Tea and cake will be provided.

A group for those who have lived experience of self-harm or self-injury. This includes a range of issues, ranging from cutting, to skin-picking, to hair-pulling and other behaviours. Run by and for service users and those who have self-harmed, it offers a supportive environment in which to share experiences, coping techniques, and the opportunity to talk to others.

It is not a clinical service, but a peer support and self-help group aimed at those for whom existing services don't quite meet all their needs, and it works to complement, not to replace professional medical help.

Beats Group

Mondays 5pm - 8pm

The Beats group is a friendly, safe environment for people with diagnoses to relax, listen to or create music among their peers. Whatever your tastes in music, see if you can add to the melting pot. People can come and go as they please between 5pm and 8pm on a Monday evening, and stay for as long or as short a time as they need to. Stick your head around the door and that's all if you decide it's not for you, we don't mind. Alternatively, play or sing a note, whether you are classically trained or wanting to begin. Create an album if you have one within you. We will find you the resources. Record your own song or perform a cover of your favourite one, or design some computer music. All we ask is that the feelings of the people in the room at the time are respected, and anything personal that's discussed is not used as idle gossip! There is an element of peer support, but don't let that scare you off, we do have a giggle and distract ourselves from/avoid the darker side of life when we can!

Firefly

Fridays 5pm - 7pm

Firefly is a game, but a game that involves a lot of creative thinking. It is a roleplaying game, a game of discussion like improvised acting, where there is no script, no costumes but the most interesting characters you can invent, doing whatever you want and rolling dice to see if it works. It is a science fiction comedy western game where a Crew of misfits fly around a distant galaxy in a spaceship, doing very odd jobs, many of them illegal, to survive under an oppressive government. It is inspired by a TV series of 2003, but we make our own legends!

Waves

What?

Waves is a peer support group for people who experienced emotional abuse in childhood.

Why?

To connect with other survivors, reduce isolation, provide mutual support, sharing ideas for recovery...

Where and when?

The next meeting is at Broadacre House, Sunday 20th December.

For meeting time and details of future meetings, contact the organisers.

Who can attend?

This group is open to all adult survivors of emotional abuse in childhood.

Emotional abuse is also known as...

- psychological maltreatment
- emotional neglect
- verbal abuse

and can include deliberately scaring, humiliating, isolating, ignoring, name calling, and generally undermining a child's self respect.

Emotional abuse is often accompanied by other forms of abuse. Survivors of multiple forms of abuse are welcome, however this group is not for the discussion of physical or sexual abuse, as there are other existing support groups in the area.
